

2001

The International Renaissance Foundation (IRF) was founded in 1990. IRF is a part of the international Soros network. This network consists of national and regional foundations in more than thirty countries around the world, primarily in Central and Eastern Europe but also on the territory of the former Soviet Union. The foundations are united by a common mission. They support educational, social and legislative initiatives that promote the progress and strengthening of an open society.

IRF is the largest national charity organization in Ukraine created to provide financial and structural assistance to the development of an open and democratic society in Ukraine by supporting citizen initiatives that coincide with the Foundation's mission. The International Renaissance Foundation finances projects and programs to support national education, culture and the assertion of civil society in Ukraine.

Program Boards and the Executive Board determine IRF's program priorities. The Boards are composed of pillars of Ukrainian society representing various areas of IRF activity: civil society, education, culture, media, public administration, health care, etc. The Executive Board is the chief civic structure within IRF. It formulates the general strategy and policies.

The majority of grants is awarded to non-profit organizations on a competitive basis. IRF announces competitions aimed at implementing its programs in advance. IRF provides grants to Ukrainian organizations that win these competitions. At the same time the International Renaissance Foundation considers all citizens' requests for project financing as long as they fall within the IRF mission.

IRF maintains a representative office in Kyiv (main office) and the Partnership Network, a network of information partners in all Ukrainian regions.

In 1990–2001 the Foundation supported numerous NGOs in Ukraine, as well as educational, community, cultural and artistic groups, publishing houses, etc. to the tune of over $ 67 million.

IRF identified enhanced involvement of non-profit organizations (NPOs) in the process of making administrative decisions by bodies of power as one of the primary objectives for the implementation of its civil society development strategy. The "Social Partnership" competition announced by the Foundation in 2001 was aimed at supporting the introduction at the regional level of competition-based models of distributing budgetary funds for NPO-implemented social programs (such models envisage participation of independent experts and representatives of territorial communities). These models make it possible to tap into the resources of a territorial community in a much more efficient manner, prevent malpractices in the apportionment of budgetary funds and step up civic and NPO participation in resolving local social problems.

In order to facilitate the achievement of the program's objectives when preparing the competition, there was held a workshop on the methods of NPO-authorities cooperation, which took place in Odesa with the participation of municipal servants, lawyers and NPO representatives specializing in the area of developing territorial-community self-organization.

East-East Program

Number of Projects:	114
Grant Amount:	$ 126 611
Share in the Total Grant Amount:	1.97 %

The Program has been in progress in Ukraine since 1993. It aims promoting the establishment of a civil society, developing cooperation and partnership amongst representatives of the scholarly, cultural, economic and political communities in countries with transitional economies, using advanced expertise and development models borrowed from partner-states.

Communication is the essence of the East-East Program. The Program espouses openness, dialogue and neutral space for diverse opinions. Program-supported initiatives seek to open up a new energy, vision and creativity towards the solidification of civil society.

The Program seeks to step up grassroots participation in Ukraine's regions, addressing the needs of the most vulnerable and locally dependent citizens. Another Program's goal is to influence social development efficacy and create a long-term opportunity for trans-border partner cooperation in achieving common goals.

The Program's priorities follow:

- Reforming state, administrative and legislative policy;
- Creating effective models of Ukraine's social and economic development;
- Fostering regional development and local self-government;
- Underpinning mass media and their role in a democratic society;
- Resolving interethnic and gender problems on the basis of the region's expertise;
- Developing cooperation between non-governmental organizations of Central and Eastern Europe;
- Supporting youth participation in democratization processes.

Supporting Ukrainian Citizens' Participation in Central and East-European Activities

Number of Projects:	106
Grant Amount:	$ 58 593
Share in the Total Grant Amount:	0.91 %

Within the framework of 106 projects, IRF supported the participation of 230 Ukrainian citizens in 47 activities carried out abroad under the East-East Network Program with the aim to: exchange information on resolving society's most pressing problems; learn the partner organizations' advanced experience primarily in the issues of European integration; and develop partnerships at the non-governmental level. Geographically, this cooperation encompassed the countries of Central and Eastern Europe, namely Poland, Hungary, the Czech Republic, Croatia and several post-Soviet states, specifically Russia, Georgia and Armenia.

The most noteworthy projects with the participation of Ukrainian citizens follow:

- NATO — Post-Soviet Region Cooperation in the Context of Security and Prevention of Terrorism (Warsaw — Brussels, a four-stage project for 1999-2001). June 2001 — getting Ukrainian journalists familiarized with various aspects of Ukraine's Euro-Atlantic prospects within the European Union and NATO, developing skills in impartially creating the image of EU and NATO in Ukrainian society via mass media (as presented in the newspaper "Halychyna" (28.07.01) and "Subota (Saturday)" Weekly, Zhytomyr (19.07.01). November 2001 — involving young political scientists in the analysis of processes that reflect the development of the Post-Soviet Region — NATO cooperation based on elaborating the doctrines of common security and terrorism prevention.

- Poland's Integration into European Structures (Poland's small towns, a three-stage project for 2001) — training visits by Ukrainian local self-government employees aimed at familiarizing with the peculiarities of Poland's administrative set-up and learning its experience in implementing administrative reform while entering the European structures. Ukrainian local incumbents established business contacts with their Polish colleagues representing small towns. The results of the visits and participants' impressions were expounded in the local mass media (the "Newspaper of Donbas' Polish Culture Society", (31.08.01), "the Crimean Pravda" (17.01.01), "the Crimean Gazette" (18.01.01), the "Crimean News" (24.10.01).
- Ukrainian Observers Garner the Experience of Monitoring Poland's Parliamentary Election (Warsaw, Poland, 16–24 September 2001) — 15 Ukrainian regional representatives observing Poland's parliamentary election. Participants dwelt on the election developments and their impressions in the regional mass media (the "Evening Cherkasy" (04.10.01) and the "Ukrainian Word" (03.10.01)).
- Discussing the Law on the Creation of Non-governmental TV and Radio Broadcasting (Yerevan, Armenia, 6–7 October 2001) — participating in the Conference "Legislative Regulation of Social and Commercial Broadcasting", discussing common problems of the Post-Soviet Region, e.g. deficient laws on mass media and non-compliance with the citizenry's rights and freedoms, governmental control over mass media; exchanging experience in regulating TV and radio broadcasting in various countries, mass media's activities in the election period, legal regulation of private broadcasting, efficacy of reforming media-related legislation, practical application of up-to-date standards, etc.

Integration of Formerly Deported Crimean Tatars, Bulgarians, Armenians, Greeks and Germans into Ukrainian Society

Number of Projects:	57
Grant Amount:	$ 241 232
Share in the Total Grant Amount:	3.76 %

In 2001 the Program carried on its cooperation with the United Nations Crimea Development and Integration Project in supporting pre-school training at multiethnic villages of Crimea.

The Program's support provided to Crimea's NGOs made it possible to stimulate civic initiatives aimed at forming a tolerant, peaceful, multinational society. The Program supported a number of projects that aimed to raise the level of professional assistance to NGOs, facilitate cooperation between Crimea's various regional NGOs and those from other parts of Ukraine, and disseminate experience in setting up a civil society and implementing minorities' rights in Europe. It is worthwhile to mention that approaches to the activity of "national" NGOs in Crimea has changed — there is a growing understanding that diverse ethnic NGOs should pool their efforts towards joint resolution of the existing local problems.

The Program supported a set of pilot Crimean-Tatar language textbooks for all grades and 70% of readers of Crimean-Tatar literature; their approbation is being under way. The implementation of this action area precipitated financial support from the state in late 2001 for the reprinting of five textbooks with the pressrun of 5,000 copies. The Program's new successful action area in 2000-2001 envisages creating and publishing a book series in Crimean-Tatar entitled "Home Reading". There have been already supported 10 publications.

One should also mention the Program's achievements in a new sphere: creating models of self-employment for local national communities ("Development of Ethnic Tourism"). IMF's initiative sparked the development of Crimea's Republican Program in Support of Ethnographic Tourism (Resolution #489 of the Cabinet of Ministers of Crimea of 18.12.01.) and cooperation with international organizations. There were launched nine ethno-centers representing various ethnic groups. Their activities seek to revive national folk crafts and traditional cultures of the peoples of Crimea, as well as develop local communities by providing new jobs. By supporting such cultural establishments as cultural and ethnographic centers it is possible to unite local societies around a common cause, stimulate the process of finding self-employment options for the rural population, and, eventually, facilitate the integration of repatriates and local dwellers.

In 2003-2005 the Program's administration and board plan to zero in on gradually making it less ethnically pronounced with the aim of securing a more efficient integration process through the inclusion of all ethnic groups in the implementation. The Program prioritizes stimulating interaction between the formerly deported and other categories of the population at the local level, fostering mutual tolerance and understanding among various ethnic, cultural and linguistic groups by enhancing the capacity to resolve ethnic problems by dialogue and compromise.

The following grant projects stand out as the most successful ones:

- Project "A Cypress Twig in Ukrainian Literature".

Grantee: Women's Club "Femina".

Manager: Tetiana Yevstafyeva.

The grant made it possible publishing a two-volume de-luxe edition of works by Lesia Ukrayinka in Ukrainian and Crimean-Tatar. This project signaled a continuation of the series of similar bilingual publications. The book boasts a high printing quality.

- Project "Sunday Schools: Crimea-Lviv".

Grantee: Lyceum School № 41 "Open Space".

Керівник: Tamara Salista-Hryhorian.

The project allowed to step up cooperation between Sunday schools both in Crimea and across Ukraine. The project witnessed a visit by headmasters of Crimean Sunday schools to western Ukraine (Lviv and Uzhhorod) and a thematic workshop held in Crimea. Headmasters of Crimean Sunday schools set up their Steering Committee.

- Project "We Resolve Local Problems Together".

Grantee: Crimean Revival Society.

Керівник: Tetiana Liutfi Osmanov.

The project staged 10 workshops for representatives of parents' committees, school administrations and local rayon administrations aimed to elicit and surmount the problems confronted by schools in remote regions of Crimea. Owing to the dissemination of information regarding their successful activities, project employees receive invitations to share their experience with non-Crimean-Tatar teachers, NGOs and other institutions.

The Program implemented a successful operation project entitled "Approbation of Training and Methodological Literature in Crimean-Tatar", whose realization allowed to evaluate the quality of Crimean-Tatar language and literature textbooks and manuals published in 1997-2000. As a result, the evaluators assessed the professional level of Crimean-Tatar language and literature teachers in Crimea's secondary educational institutions and prepared recommendations on the necessary pressrun of textbooks and manuals.

Projects Supported by the Program:

Grantee: Association of Crimean Karaims "Krymkarailar", Simferopol.

Project Manager: Hennadiy Katyk.

Project Summary: The project aims to preserve and revive the identity of one of Crimea's small peoples — Crimean Karaims. The project launched three shops: potter's, blacksmith's and weaver's — in order to nurture the rebirth of folk crafts, costume, customs, rites, as well as enable the public to see the rich Karaim culture and attract tourists' attention to architectural and cultural landmarks of the region.

Total: $ 7 000

Grantee: Youth NGO "We", Bilohirsk.

Project Manager: Shamrat Ametov.

Project Summary: Setting up a cultural and ethnographic center "Tash-Khan" in Bilohirsk. There was launched an excursion route to familiarize visitors with historical and cultural background of Crimean Tatars, their traditional folk trades and the way of life. The Center's activity contributes to the rebirth of traditional folk trades, raises the awareness of guests and locals of Crimean Tatars' cultural heritage, and provides information support for the relevant tourist route and the training of guides.

Total: $ 6 986

Grantee: Republican Secondary Boarding-school with I-III Accreditation Levels for Gifted Children, Village of Tankove.

Project Manager: Memet Kanhiev.

Project Summary: Creating a cultural and ethnographic center for gifted children, which enabled those interested to undertake folk-lore and historical expeditions for gathering materials on Crimea's history, ethnography and toponymy; organize a Crimean-Tatar-Ukrainian choir and dance company, as well as develop documentaries on historical, cultural and ethnographic background of Crimea's deportees. They conducted a seminar for ethnic school teachers dedicated to the findings of the expeditions.

Total: $ 6 000

Grantee: Crimean-Tatar Youth League "Yash Nesyl", Ismail Bey, Yevpatoria.

Project Manager: Alife-Khanum Yashlavska.

Project Summary: Creating a history and ethnography museum dedicated to the peoples that inhabit Crimean's steppe region "Yash Dah", with shops for studying and reviving folk crafts, ancient customs and trades of Crimean Tatars, Karaims and Krymchaks that managed to preserve the secrets of their handicrafts, semiprecious stones and leather processing and manufacture of diverse souvenirs.

Roma of Ukraine Program

Number of Projects:	45
Grant Amount:	$ 140 464
Share in the Total Grant Amount:	2.19 %

In 2001 the Program continued working in line with the following priorities:

Educational initiatives: Developing the existing and creating new Roma schools for children and youth, who were not able to obtain secondary education due to certain reasons. In 2001, school activity focused on the formation of education, training and retraining groups on the basis of Roma schools and NGOs. Based on Roma schools experience, the Program initiated the development of a typical Roma Sunday school curriculum and methodological materials for teaching Roma traditions and language.

Roma NGOs assisted in creating a database of young Roma that study at present and plan on studying at higher educational institutions. This database demonstrated that Roma communities are in dire need of qualified lawyers, economists and journalists. It allowed to adopt a more systemic approach to organizing cooperation with international programs that facilitate young Roma's education. The Program also keeps supporting young Roma receiving higher education.

Cultural initiatives: In 2001, the Central event in supporting Roma cultural initiatives was the AMALA — 2001 international festival. This high-profile event covered by key Ukrainian mass media aimed to shatter negative stereotypes of a considerable part of Ukrainian society pertaining to the Roma minority by propagating Roma's positive image and high cultural attainments, as well as signal the end of a biased attitude to Roma, "cultural rehabilitation" of the Roma community and its integration into Ukraine's cultural space as an equal partner. Roma organizations' cultural initiatives boosted the unification of regional Roma communities. They build up their relationships with state structures on the basis of this particular group of projects.

The project of developing Roma civic broadcasting in the Transcarpathian Region in cooperation with the majority of local Roma NGOs became another successful example of pooling resources and efforts of several Roma organizations.

Social initiatives: In 2001, a new social action area — the development of consulting resource centers — proved to be extremely efficacious. Such centers identify the problems and challenges confronted by local Roma communities and grapple with them in collaboration with bodies of local self-government, educational and other institutions. The thumping majority of projects aimed to involve medical and educational professionals in raising people's awareness and educational level, and furnishing consultations to Roma communities; launching legal advice services in Roma communities; exchanging information and carrying out joint activities by various regional consulting resource centers.

Another new initiative of establishing medical consulting and diagnostic centers staffed with qualified professionals in Roma communities turned out remarkably important. This became possible thanks to the resources and well coordinated activity of the network program "Public Health". In 2001, the Program stepped up its efforts in attracting additional funds. Specifically, this is about cooperation with international partners, namely the Matra Program (Dutch Embassy), which intends to co-finance projects aimed at providing Roma leaders with educational opportunities. The East-East Program will become more active in using its capacities for engaging Roma NGOs in the process of exchanging information with the countries more experienced in developing the Roma civic sector. In 2002 the Program will keep working on attracting additional funds from other donor organizations, in particular those which support programs linked with Roma minorities but do not have their representative offices in Ukraine (National Minority Group, the Council of Europe Directorate on Human Rights, etc).

Share in the Total Grant Amount:	2.52 %

Gender education is one of the action areas, which require special attention on the side of the Program, since traditional stereotypes regarding women's role and place in society still widely exist in Ukraine, although the Ukrainian Constitution legislatively proclaims that men and women are equal in their rights.

In 2001 the Program supported an all-Ukrainian competition of students' works on gender topics that provided ample material for analyzing gender awareness of students and their teachers.

With the aim to change and develop the public's attitude towards gender equity, the Program supports innovative educational projects aimed at integrating gender-sensitive views and methods at all levels of education. The Empowering Education program is one of such initiatives. The Education and Science Ministry of Ukraine officially licensed this program, and the Network Women's IBC-New York Program identified it as a separate strategic action area.

Projects Supported by the Program:

Action Area: Reproductive Health

Number of Projects:	8
Grant Amount:	$ 48 000
Share in the Total Grant Amount:	0.75 %

In 2001 the Woman in Society Program carried on its public awareness activities both among adult women and youth in order to prevent a negligent attitude to their health and help them make their own informed choice in various situations. Such awareness campaigns aimed to disseminate information on the ways and methods of preventing female reproductive system pre-cancerous and cancerous disease, as well as develop skills in using contraception and preventing sexually transmitted diseases. The program implemented these information campaigns in partnership with Oblast Public Health Administrations.

Volunteer physicians and representatives of NGOs that initiated project activities participated in the work of "mobile consulting centers", which traveled around villages and small towns delivering explanatory lectures on female reproductive system disease and the importance of early diagnostics.

During a theatre-enhanced awareness campaign an amateur theatre toured Zakarpattia Oblast educational institutions staging thematic performances "Adventure Seekers" and "What a Thrilling Life Is All About", which dwelt upon the dangerous sides of "adult life".

Share in the Total Grant Amount:	0.28 %

Network projects mean joint activity of several national foundations of the Soros Network in various action areas, which require that the international community pool the efforts of its members, for instance: gender education, gender policy, prevention of violence against women, reproductive health, information networks, etc.

The Program is preparing the following materials based on the results of network projects: a series of books "Oral Stories" (documentary notes of women, who witnessed socio-political crises of the Soviet and transition periods); a mobile video festival on the status of women's rights and gender policy in various countries that take part in the Gender Policy and Mass Media Project; and a joint report within the framework of the Female Reproductive System Cancerous Disease Prevention Project. The Program creates prerequisites for a single information network of women's and gender-related NGOs on the basis of the Women's Infotheque (Croatia).

Nine independent states of the former Soviet Union have joined the Empowering Education Project coordinated by Ukraine. Indonesia and Burma are willing to join in.

Mass Media Program

Share in the Total Grant Amount:	13.41 %

Following yet another redistribution of Ukraine's information space (2000-2001) the thumping majority of politically significant media have found themselves under the control of pro-government political and financial groups. These media function within the limits of prescribed political projects and cannot abide by the standards of democratic journalism. It is fair enough to assume that pro-government group will take pains to carry on monopolizing the media market, which increasingly jeopardizes the freedom of speech.

In 2001, IRF's Mass Media Program focused its strategy on covering the parliamentary and local election campaigns and achieving specific objectives related to the elections. Simultaneously, IRF viewed it as an integral part of a more comprehensive long-term strategy aimed at developing advanced institutions that will cooperate with mass media towards a civil society and a chance to formulate more clearly long-term needs of the media environment. Often working in defiance of political interests of media owners, this environment succeeded in upgrading the level of civic dialogue.

Proceeding from the above-mentioned challenges and positive trends, IRF decided to come to grips with the following tasks:

1. Disseminating well-balanced election-related information, and securing conditions that make mass media equally accessible to proponents of various political forces.
2. Stimulating public interest in the elections.
3. Establishing professional journalist associations capable of regulating and defending themselves.
4. Forming a favorable legislative environment for the development of a democratic, pluralistic and competitive information space.

The Foundation initiated the creation of a single donor platform for coordinating efforts towards a democratic media environment in Ukraine. Not only does IRF provide financial support for media-related initiatives, but it also keeps playing the role of a catalyst and facilitator in this process.

Law Programs

Number of Projects:	107
Grant Amount:	$ 654 648
Share in the Total Grant Amount:	10.20 %

Structuring of an open and democratic society in Ukraine is impossible without the implementation of legal reform and observance of citizens' rights and freedoms. This is why IRF's law programs aim to develop Ukraine's legal infrastructure, support contemporary democratic institutions, secure the rule of law and realization of basic human rights. The Foundation's law programs strive to bridge the gap between laws and people in their everyday life and bring about tangible changes in society's legal culture and awareness, making sure that Ukrainian citizens see laws as an instrument to protect their rights.

The main programs implemented by IRF are as follows:

1. Public Advocacy Program: securing people's right to defend themselves in court and providing legal assistance to the least favored layers of the population.
2. Penitentiary Reform Program: democratizing and humanizing corrective institutions, introducing alternative kinds of punishment, returning convicts to society and securing social adaptation for former inmates.
3. Legal Education: fostering a more practical educational process and equipping students with skills and experience in furnishing legal aid to the population.

The major challenges confronted by IRF's law programs have to do with implementing judicial reform, combating corruption, training of judges and militia officers, ensuring coverage of judicial and legal reform implementation via mass media and publishing legal literature.

Public Advocacy Program

Number of Projects:	33
Grant Amount:	$ 329 081
Share in the Total Grant Amount:	5.13 %

The Public Advocacy Program's goal is to foster the development of a civil society in Ukraine, establish the rule of law, strengthen democracy and protect human and civil rights. The Program supports civic initiatives directed at providing the citizenry with legal aid, raising the level of legal awareness and legal culture, reinforcing the public's control over bodies of power and incumbents, and promoting transparent decision-making. The Program pays special attention to improving the mechanisms of civil rights protection by supporting practical initiative in this field.

The Program sees its objective in cooperating with civic watchdog organizations in order to ensure that citizens supervise the enforcement of laws, observance of legitimate rights and freedoms, realization of delegated powers by bodies of the executive in keeping with their functions and non-judicial protection of citizens' rights and freedoms. In accordance with its objectives, in 2001 the Program supported 31 projects, including:

- Projects aimed at combating corruption in the Armed Forces, among traffic police officers and other public servants;
- Projects aimed to monitor the observance of human rights, the performance of central bodies of public administration and local self-government

The Program sees its main priorities in raising people's legal awareness and implementing advocacy activities. In keeping with this, the Foundation furthered the creation of an NGO network that renders free legal aid to the least protected strata of the population both in remote rural areas and in oblast centers of Ukraine.

In 2001, the Institute of Constitutional and Legal Policy (COLPI), Budapest, approved the Judicial Reform in Ukraine Program's strategy for 2002-2003. Thus, IRF's Public Advocacy Program successfully implemented during 1999 — 2001 in fact terminated its activity, being transformed in the Judicial Reform Program.

The goal of the new program is to foster the reformation of Ukraine's judiciary, promote the development of independent and efficient courts, ensure open and impartial administration of justice in Ukraine, and refine the mechanisms of protecting human rights and freedoms in court.

In 2002, the Judicial Reform Program will concentrate its efforts on the following priority action areas:

- Securing that justice is really independent and impartial by way of introducing a new system of financial and logistical support for courts;
- Assisting bodies of judicial self-government and the Supreme Court of Ukraine in organizing centralized training and improvement of qualification for judges;
- Providing courts and judges with normative and practical information;
- Developing and enhancing the role of judicial self-administration;
- Drafting proposals on amending procedural legislation in order to ensure that the court process be open and adversarial.

Penitentiary Reform in Ukraine Program

Number of Projects:	53
Grant Amount:	$ 252 592
Share in the Total Grant Amount:	3.94 %

The Program's goal is to foster democratic reforms in the penitentiary system. It is unfeasible to build up an open society in Ukraine without the democratization of the prison system and its reformation aimed at observing human rights and meeting international standards for the treatment of inmates. The prison system should undergo further humanization and be reoriented towards a humane attitude to convicts and their social rehabilitation.

The Program implemented its activities in the following action areas:

- Fostering reforms towards the humanization and democratization of the penitentiary system;
- Supporting NGO initiatives aimed at introducing social rehabilitation programs for various categories of convicts (minors, women, the disabled, drug addicts, etc.);
- Involving NGOs in the work with released persons;
- Facilitating the activity of social adaptation centers for the released;
- Conducting training sessions for penitentiary system employees;
- Molding public opinion via mass media;
- Propagating among judges alternative non-custodial punishments;
- Fostering the development and adoption of new democratic legislation.

IRF implements the Program in cooperation with Ukraine's Prison Department, experienced experts of the Constitutional and Legal Policy Institute (Budapest, Hungary) and the best Ukrainian experts.

In 2001, the Program finalized 32 projects supported in 2000 and started working on 55 projects launched in 2001. The total grant amount is 300,000 US dollars.

Involving civil society in the reformation, humanization and democratization of the Ukrainian penitentiary system is the Program's biggest success. Currently, more than 50 NGOs successfully implement initiatives in this area. The range of the NGOs and other structures involved has become considerably broader. Youth, women's, information, social NGOs, educational institutions, courts and corrective facilities have joined human rights NGOs in implementing IRF's projects in this area.

The penitentiary system became more open thanks to the closer cooperation of IRF and NGOs with the Prison Department. The process of molding public opinion regarding the system's transformation through intense collaboration with mass media enhanced the transparency of the prison system.

The Foundation supported the creation of a retraining center for penal system employees and initiatives that foster the introduction of international standards into Ukraine's penitentiary practice and step up public participation in reforming the system.

The Program's initiatives tangibly contribute to developing legal prerequisites and democratic legislation for Ukraine's penitentiary system reform.

Legal Clinics Program

Number of Projects:	19
Grant Amount:	$ 62 705
Share in the Total Grant Amount:	0.98 %

Ukraine is still in the process of reforming its legislative and administrative systems. This work requires professional lawyers equipped with adequate knowledge of society's vital problems. The Legal Clinics Program makes it possible to meet the country's need of such professionals.

Inextricable linkages between laws, legal theory and practice become obvious only in real-life scenarios. The work of a "legal clinic" enables students to realize full well how important and significant the theoretical knowledge obtained is, and learn how best to apply this knowledge in practice. This mode of learning is far more valuable than classical hands-on training sessions practiced by the overwhelming majority of higher educational institutions, since it provides an opportunity of communicating with people, who really need legal aid. This enhances students' skills in communicating, analyzing information and using psychological approaches so essential for everyday work of any lawyer. Young lawyers take great interest in acquiring such indispensable skills and know that they will come in handy for career development. The program gives priority to involving active and creative individuals.

In keeping with Part I of Article 59 of Ukraine's Constitution, "everyone has the right to legal assistance. Everyone is free to choose the defender of his or her rights". Providing legal assistance free of charge aims to implement the constitutional principle, which proclaims that citizens be equal in defending their rights.

The Program's main objective is to assist citizens in implementing their rights. To this end, it involved legal educational institutions and other state organizations in spanning the gap in the area of rendering legal aid to the poorest sectors of the population. This work boosts Ukraine's administrative reform. In the process of defending citizens' rights program participants detect violations perpetrated by bodies of public administration and make every effort to preclude these violations by appealing illegitimate decisions and submitting proposals on how best to improve the performance of such bodies.

It is important that in 2001 the Program succeeded in launching legal clinics at law departments of 21 higher educational institutions. Most of them appeared thanks to the Program's grants, although there are some self-sufficient ones. Ukraine is a huge country with hundreds of institutions training law students. This is why the Foundation's strategy implies supporting a greater number of new clinics with small grants rather than a couple of the biggest ones. Their representatives attended a number of international training events arranged by COLPI in Warsaw, Budapest, Sofia and Saint Petersburg. Others had a chance to get their training in Ukraine taking part in the workshops organized by the Information Methodological Center "Debates". Besides, representatives of some clinics often go on internships to the more advanced clinics that proved to be well recognized over the last several years.

Library Program

Number of Projects:	15
Grant Amount:	$ 105 259
Share in the Total Grant Amount:	1.64 %

The goal of the Program is to introduce advanced information and communication technologies and expand access to information.

The Program helped build an open information library infrastructure on the basis of interlibrary cooperation. It implemented its activities by way of collaborating with government agencies, international organizations and information centers, and NGOs.

The Program gives strategic priority to the Project "Creation of Regional Corporate Portals and Information Centers Based on Regional Public Libraries" (developed and initiated by IRF. The following entities joined in: the Ministry of Culture and Arts of Ukraine, British Council in Ukraine, Goethe Institute Inter Naciones, IREX, Information Center of the US Embassy in Ukraine, oblast state administrations and regional bodies of the executive. The IRF Library Program expects the European Commission in Ukraine and NATO Information and Documentation Center in Ukraine to officially join the project in 2002).

Within the framework of its Project "Electronic Information for Libraries of Ukraine" the Program spearheaded the creation of a Consortium of Electronic Resource Users. 35 Ukrainian organizations joined the Project.

The Program signed:

- Agreement with the Ministry of Culture and Arts "On Coordinating Efforts with the Aim to Develop Librarianship in Ukraine"
- Agreement with Goethe Institute Inter Naciones "On Coordinating Efforts with the Aim to Implement the Program "Creation of Regional Corporate Portals and Information Centers"
- Memorandum with IREX on joining efforts within the framework of implementing the Program "Creation of Regional Corporate Portals and Information Centers"
- Agreement between IRF and MABIT, "FACSIM-IMM and EBSCO Publishing on the implementation of the Project "Electronic Information for Libraries of Ukraine — Access to Databases of the EBSCO Publishing Company "

The program was awarded:

- A Diploma of Honor from the Sponsor of the Crimea-2001 Conference
- A Diploma of Honor from the Crimea Conference Steering Committee for securing high-quality organization of the specialized workshop "Hybrid Library"
- A Certificate of Acknowledgement from the Steering Committee of the International Conference "Law and Society: Interaction Challenges" (Vinnitsia Affiliate of the International Academy of Personnel Management)

Information Program

Number of Projects:	31
Grant Amount:	$ 159 067
Share in the Total Grant Amount:	2.48 %

In 2001 the Information Program gave priority to the Project "Information and Communication Technologies (ICT) for Information Society". ICT are key to the possibility of globalization and bringing about a rapid increase in information, capital, ideas, human resources and products. Civil society should realize the potential of advanced ICT, whereas citizens should stimulate their use and fully benefit from that.

The Program sees its goal in introducing state-of-the-art information and communication technologies and expanding access to information. The Program supported civic initiatives aimed at reinforcing legislative and institutional underpinnings in the area of information development, and promoting the establishment of ICT-enhanced electronic governance.

The Program signed a Memorandum on organization and support for the initiative "National Round Tables "Ukraine — Information and Communication Technologies for Development" (IRF, State Committee on Communication and Informatization and United Nations Development Program).

The IRF Information Program co-implements the Innovation Springboard Program "Leveraging Information and Communication Technologies for Ukraine's Prosperity" (a joint effort of IRF, State Committee on Communication and Informatization, United Nations Development Program, National Academy of Sciences, National Taras Shevchenko University and JSC "Ukrtelecom").

The Program won a Certificate of Acknowledgement from the Steering Committee of the International Conference "Law and Society: Interaction Challenges" (Vinnytsia Affiliate of the International Academy of Personnel Management) for delivering a presentation on the topic: "Creation of a System of Electronic Governance in Ukraine".

Competition "Electronic Journals in Social Sciences and Humanities"

Number of Projects:	14
Grant Amount:	$ 70 000
Share in the Total Grant Amount:	1.09 %

IRF sees one of its Information Programs' topical objectives in creating favorable conditions for the development of e-publishing in Ukraine and filling the Internet with meaningful Ukrainian-language products.

The 2001 competition's goal was creating and supporting academic and research e-journals in social sciences and humanities.

Out of the 65 competition projects submitted, the Program supported 14 journals dedicated to vital issues in developing an open society in Ukraine, specifically gender-sensitive topics, media-education, social work, the development of democracy and policy analysis, public advocacy and Middle East studies. The Program also supported a number of projects that aimed to develop relevant social sciences and humanities: history, literary studies, sociology, philosophy and some electronic reference journals: "Politics. Since 2001 the Information Program has been developing its training component, specifically it supported the workshop "Use of Advanced Information Technologies in Publishing and Distribution". In 2002 it plans to conduct a competition aimed at developing distance learning courses for managers of non-profit Internet-projects.

The Program's notable achievement in 2001 was initiating the development of specialized software for creating electronic journals with the use of Internet-enhanced technologies. This project will provide Ukrainian scholars and publishers with free-of-charge software and disc space for academic e-journals. The initiative will tangibly lower the cost of launching and maintaining academic electronic journals.

Translation Project

Number of Projects:	68
Grant Amount:	$272 600
Share in the Total Grant Amount:	4.25 %

The latest surveys (questionnaires and in-depth interviews) among Ukrainian academics and publishers determined the following hierarchy of the urgent needs in Ukrainian society:

- Providing Ukrainian translations of basic social-humanitarian texts and books that highlight open society values.
- Developing a well-established tradition of academic translations.
- Developing market mechanisms in book publishing and distribution.

Thus, the Translation Project in 2001 was focused on:

- Dissemination of new ideas and practices by supporting a certain number of translations of the best classical and contemporary authors crucial for the transformation of higher education in humanities and social sciences. This will lead to the promotion of critical thinking and information on open society values, social capital and trust; exchange of experience in democratization, globalization and multiculturalism;
- Dissemination of new ideas and practices by supporting a certain number of translations crucial for the development of NGOs and local communities: new management strategies, gender issues, public policy development, democratization of public administration, etc;
- Support for the growth of an independent and sustainable publishing sector as a vital civil society institution;
- Support for the growth of the Ukrainian school of academic translation;

- Development of Ukrainian-language terminology in various fields;
- Transformation of academic and public discourse in Ukraine.

The Translation Project network program is a joint initiative of IRF, the Information Program of the Open Society Institute-Budapest (OSI-Budapest) and Next Page Foundation, Sofia, Bulgaria. The program was launched in Ukraine in 1998. Its aim is to provide financial support for national publishers in order to translate and publish books in social sciences and humanities recommended by the OSI experts. The main mission and objective of all of these books is providing theoretical and practical knowledge for the promotion of critical thinking, intercultural understanding, high educational standards and open society values, so desperately needed by societies in transition.

Since 1998 till April 2002, 143 book titles were translated into Ukrainian and published by Ukrainian publishing houses with IRF's partial support; another 189 titles are being translated and will also be published. The average grant amount has been reduced from 70%-80% in the project's early years to 30%-40% in 2001. Part of the IRF Translation Project's funding is aimed at improving translation quality of the books supported by IRF.

The Program has the following major short-term results: (a) appearance of new books by the best foreign authors that signal landmarks in the development of social sciences and humanities, promote advanced modes of critical thinking and propagate open society values, social capital and trust, experience in democratization, globalization and multiculturalism (77% of the books supported are contemporary titles and 23% — classical ones); (b) a better cooperation between academics and publishers; (c) new academic publishers that emerged with IRF's support.

The main long-term result of the program is the enhancement of independent (non-state) publishers' activity at international markets and their integration into the world publishers' community.

The Program's impact includes, but is not limited to: (a) modernization and improvement of publishing-related legal procedures and practices in Ukraine such as copyrights agreements, royalties and translators' fees; (b) further development of the Ukrainian academic translation school and cooperation among publishers, translators and academics; (c) promotion of academic and public discourse in Ukraine; (d) development of Ukrainian terminology; (e) decentralization of the publishing industry; (f) growing economic efficiency of the publishing industry and a burgeoning intellectual and academic life.

Books supported by IRF regularly win top prizes at various book contests and ratings (such as 'The Book of the Year', 'Forum of Publishers', etc).

Competition "Translating into Ukrainian Foreign Titles in Social Sciences and Humanities"

Number of Projects:	66
Grant Amount:	$ 249 319
Share in the Total Grant Amount:	3.89 %

Every year Ukrainian publishers are invited to participate in an open grant competition 'Translating into Ukrainian Foreign Titles in Social Sciences and Humanities'.

The maximum possible subsidy must not exceed fifty percent of the total project's cost and may be spent by publishers on copyrights, translation, academic editing, proofreading and printing.

The list of titles recommended for translation and publication within the announced competition is placed on the IRF Translation Project web page of (<http://www.irf.kiev.ua>). Every publisher should provide a copy of the translation as well as complete information on the copyright holder, if the book doesn't belong to the list of recommended titles.

Financing goes in two stages: Part 1 (up to 50%) is granted for covering the cost of copyright and translation expenses, on condition that the publisher has a license for translation and publishing of the book in Ukrainian; the rest of the grant is reimbursed upon publication.

In 2001, the Competition supported 65 projects of the 219 submitted. Independent experts evaluated the projects in keeping with the following criteria: (a) importance of the book for the development of Ukraine's academic sphere and its importance for the realization of IRF's mission — promoting the development of an open democratic society in Ukraine; (b) transparent and reasonable budget; (c) indispensable co-funding (d) clear and realistic implementation deadline; (e) experience in publishing academic translations; (f) cooperation with highly professional translators, scientific and literary editors; (g) information on the copyright holder; (h) publishers' ability to provide quality search indexing and necessary appendices.

Partially, the Translation Project's financial support is aimed at upgrading the quality of translations. The Operational Project 'Translation Quality Expert Analysis' was initiated in 2002 and continued into 2001. It implies additional academic and literary proofreading and editing for translations supported within the Open Grant Competition 'Translating into Ukrainian Foreign Titles in Social Sciences and Humanities'.

Grantee: International Renaissance Foundation, Kyiv.
Project Manager: Iryna Kuchma.

IRF fosters the revival of the Ukrainian school of academic translation. In 2000–2001 it supported two initiatives in this area: IRF's Operational Project "Translation Quality Expert Analysis" and "2000–2001 Translators' Workshop. Year 2 — a Two-year School of Construing and Translating Fiction and Academic Texts (Humanities and Social Sciences)". This appeared the only initiative in Ukraine aimed at nurturing a new generation of Ukrainian translators.

29 students attended in 'Translators' Workshop' (19 Ukrainians —translators into Ukrainian and 10 foreigners — translators from Ukrainian). The Project's main component was a one-year distance training course facilitated by personal tutors. It implied translating fiction and non-fiction texts, literary reviews and academic articles in humanities. Apart from distance learning sessions, the students had a mid-term in-class week for "fine-tuning" and a 3-week session for lectures and discussions.

The Program is preparing for print two resultant manuals: "The Translators' Workshop Proceedings" and "The Translators' Workshop Anthology". Both contain lectures, selected comments to the seminars, reference materials, lists of recommended literature, glossaries, and samples of students' texts. These manuals will go free of charge to the students, professors and tutors, who worked at the workshop. They will likewise find their way and come in handy to the relevant departments of Ukrainian and foreign Universities, University libraries and publishing houses.

Grantee: Center for Research in Humanities, Lviv.

Project Manager: Mariya Hablevych.

Project Summary: Conducting Year 2 of the "Translators' Workshop — a Two-year School of Construing and Translating Fiction and Academic Texts (Humanities and Social Sciences)".

The Center for Testing Technologies Project aims to develop and pilot-test an external standardized testing model. This external testing system is to allow independent evaluation of secondary school graduates' achievements and presumes that test results will be integrated into higher education institutions' admission process. Project implementation should stimulate quality control of education in Ukraine and ensure equal access to higher education.

Grantee: IRF, Kyiv.

Project Manager: Alla Seletska.

Project Summary: Researching the possibility of introducing an independent testing system for secondary school graduates applying for admission to university, including an analysis of the existing legislative-normative basis for their functioning, working out of a methodology and methods of evaluating graduates' knowledge by way of independent testing. The project also includes the creation of a Centre for Independent Testing with a network of regional representative offices, as well as the signing of agreements with leading higher education institutions in Ukraine leading to their recognition of the results of independent testing in the application process and in the course of learning.

Student Advising Centers

Number of Projects:	8
Grant Amount:	$ 93 500
Share in the Total Grant Amount:	1.46 %

With the aim of stimulating the development of international education for talented Ukrainian students, IRF provides continuous support for the activities of the Student Advising Centers (SACs), whose functions include:

- Providing consultations and lessons in-house and at higher education institutions about opportunities for study, internships and research at universities abroad, including admission procedures and application how-tos.
- Search and cataloguing of information about the types and sources of support for study abroad, including costs and sources of financial aid, testing and application.
- Developing a network of resource Centres and information stands, and supplying them with the required printed materials and information about education programs of the Foundation and other organizations.
- Production of information sheets and handouts for the network, and instructions for visitors to the Centres.
- Maintaining a comprehensive database on current grant and scholarship programs for study abroad.

The Centre network cooperates closely with representatives of international organizations involved in providing scholarships for study abroad — USIS/PAS, ACCELS/ACIE, IREX, The British Council/DFID, French Cultural Centre, DAAD, Goethe Institute, The Council of Europe Information Centre, foreign embassies etc.

Scholarships are provided on an open competitive basis. Most IRF/OSI scholarship programs are oriented towards socio-economic studies and the humanities (for political scientists, economist, historians, lawyers, sociologists, journalists etc.) An IRF or OSI scholarship generally includes compensation of all expenses associated with study at a university abroad — payment for study and living expenses, as well as visa and transport expenses.

Ukrainian Information-Methodological Debate Center, the program implementer, is a member of the International Debates in Education Association (IDEA). In recent years a network of "Debate" Centres had been opened in Simferopol, Lviv, Kharkiv, Dnipropetrovsk, Donetsk, Odesa, Kherson, Kalush with the support of the IRF and OSI-New York. The Centres have concluded cooperation agreements with local education departments and other (national) organizations. They present their methodologies at education conferences and participate in implementing other programs in Ukraine. They also seek out partners and adapt new types of work. Right now there are 105 school and 50 student "Debate" clubs in Ukraine.

The goal of the "Debate" program is to encourage youth to lead an active way of life, become socially aware citizens of their country. "Debate" program trains not for arguments' sake, but rather to bring children closer to their surroundings. Unlike traditional education, the debate methodology teaches school students to seek out advantages and weak points from every point of view, and to logically, not emotionally, convey their own beliefs. "Debate" is professional preparation for students who wish to study at law, political science, philosophy and language departments at university. Instructors in other fields are also adopting this program because it helps develop verbal language skills and the general level of erudition. The program teaches youths critical thinking and encourages them to discuss topics of the day, while developing tolerance and respect towards other viewpoints, building rhetorical skills and public-speech abilities.

Grantee: Information-methodological Centre "Debate", Kyiv.

Project Manager: Valeriy Mardanenko.

Project Summary: Unification of the activities of debate clubs and regional debate Centres in all oblasts of Ukraine, which encouraged the spread of the "Debate" program to other education institutions; addressing the needs of clubs in terms of printed methodical materials; conduct of seminars and provision of consultations. One of the program's key benefits is that it provides youths with the opportunity to spend their free time in a useful fashion, e.g. for improving their ability to lead discussions, defend their own point of view, see all aspects of a program, and generally become more socially proactive individuals.

Step-by-Step Program

Number of Projects:	5
Grant Amount:	$ 139 000
Share in the Total Grant Amount:	2.17 %

The Program aims to introduce a new education model for children from birth through the age of 10 based on democratic values. The Program is based on the best European and American practices and traditions in early childhood education and combines national pedagogical traditions with regional Ukrainian educational and cultural differences. The program supports the development of traits required for living in a democratic society, including: the ability to think critically, make independent and informed choices, clearly identify and resolve problems, accept changes and influence them, be creative and flexible, and think of oneself as part of a local community, country and the world. Program implementation includes organizing and conducting numerous seminars/training sessions, as well as participating in relevant international events.

Reading and Writing for Critical Thinking Program

Number of Projects:	1
Grant Amount:	$ 60 000
Share in the Total Grant Amount:	0.94 %

The goal of the Program is to integrate teaching strategies that assist pupils to better understand what they have read, show independence in terms of self-education, understand the logic of arguments, learn to listen to what their counterparts are saying, lead discussions in a confident manner and make well-thought out decisions. Implementation of the Reading and Writing for Critical Thinking Program stimulates the democratizing of education through changes in the teaching methodology of various fields of study. The project proposes a clear system of teaching methods that support development of critical thinking and self-education by pupils.

In order to support the development of modern Ukrainian culture and to establish creative contacts and cultural exchange with the rest of the world, the International Renaissance Foundation initiated a national Culture Program in 1994. Within that period the Program provided grants for the total amount of US $ 6 million (including programs of the Soros Centers for Contemporary Art). The program conducts its activity by holding tenders and by implementing operational projects.

Program implementation principles imply co-operation with public administration bodies, civic network organizations, analytical and research centers, other donor organizations in Ukraine and abroad.

The Program's target audience comprises non-profit cultural and arts organizations. The activity of the program encompasses all Ukrainian regions.

Schweitzer Seminars and Conferences Program

Number of Projects:	8
Grant Amount:	$ 2 968
Share in the Total Grant Amount:	0.05 %

The goal of seminars and conferences held by the Albert Schweitzer Institute is organizing and conducting, in cooperation with national and international organizations, meetings that foster interdisciplinary exchange of ideas and help resolve important problems, increase national resources in the area of public health, and promote the development of new initiatives in public health through discussing various clinical, ethical, medical and advocacy aspects that serve the cause of improving the health of various target groups and, specifically, risk groups.

The Albert Schweizer Institute is a non-profit NGO, which implements educational programs in the areas of public health and ethical education for youth. Guided by Albert Schweizer's principles and concepts (presented in his book "Respect for Life"), the Institute runs a number of educational pilot projects, aimed at nurturing ethical values and promoting the development of civic activities in public health. The Institute was founded in 1984 as the Albert Schweizer Memorial Fund.

The Program conducts a series of Schweizer seminars and conferences within the framework of the OSI Health Program with the assistance of the Albert Schweizer Institute. Their objective is to re-think the role of healthcare institutions in providing medical services to the population and propagating a systemic approach to public health by organizing an open dialogue between medical experts and other scholars at workshops aimed to resolve specific problems.

In 2001, ten Ukrainians participated in such conferences.
