INTERNATIONAL RENAISSANCE FOUNDATION

Annual Report 2012

THE INTERNATIONAL RENAISSANCE FOUNDATION
EXPRESSES SINCERE GRATITUDE TO ALL OUR PARTNERS
IN BUILDING AN OPEN SOCIETY IN UKRAINE

In 2012 the International Renaissance Foundation supported a wide range of civic initiatives that shared one very important feature - the consolidation and defense of democratic transformations and development of an open society in Ukraine. IRF provided UAH 63 million in funding to civil society organizations - more than any other donor organization working in this field in Ukraine.

We are grateful to the friends and partners whose cooperation made possible a number of successful and promising initiatives. As the experience of 2012 has shown, civil society in Ukraine is most successful when active citizens and NGOs work together to oppose the undemocratic actions of the government on all levels. Effective civic action blocked the adoption of an undemocratic law that would have introduced criminal liability for defamation and restricted freedom of speech. Active members of the public put a stop to the backroom discussions and prevented the rushed adoption of a new law on higher education. Government initiatives that objectively destroy the national university admission test system and its anti-corruption component also faced strong resistance.

The parliamentary elections in late 2012 demonstrated the unity and maturity of civil society. The CHESNO (Honest) movement, which brought together more than 150 NGOs, monitored the integrity and professionalism of all MPs and candidates. It played a strong role in influencing newly elected deputies to start respecting the constitution, particularly as regards individual voting in parliament. Independent online resources such as “Maidan” collected documentation of election violations and created the foundation for public resistance against the “buying” of votes. Having agreed to independent monitoring of their news programs, central TV channels made their information policy more balanced, while representatives of Inter even signed a memorandum on the continuation of public monitoring after the election campaign.

There were many failed attempts in 2012 to undermine the solidarity of active public organizations and populist efforts to deny the value of their cooperation with the government to promote democratic reforms. The Foundation’s cooperation with government institutions last year shows that civil society organizations and campaigns can achieve certain success even in the current political environment. This is possible when the public utilizes all possibility opportunities to promote initiatives and apply collective pressure on the government, as well as by sharing expertise with the government to promote or defend the common public interest for the democratization of society. This is what made possible the adoption in 2012 of a series of democratic legislation: laws on public associations and on charity and charitable organizations, and a new Criminal Procedure Code that received the approval of the Venice Commission and Council of Europe. A presidential decree approved a rather progressive Strategy for civil society development and corresponding implementation plan, although they still require critical public review and monitoring of their execution. The Ministry of Justice has started implementing a system of free legal aid that was set up by NGOs with assistance from IRF and the Open Society Justice Initiative. Public experts assisted the Ministry of Culture in drafting the president’s decree on a Strategy for the protection and integration into Ukrainian society of the Roma national minority until 2020 and a corresponding Action Plan.

Although the results of the 2012 elections fell short of expectations of a rebirth of Ukraine’s political elite, certain MPs and committees of the new Verkhovna Rada are already looking to set up cooperation with civil society. The Foundation looks forward to such cooperation, as it will enable the adoption of progressive legislation and control its implementation.

2013 promises to provide an answer to the greatest challenge of the day - the signing of the EU-Ukraine Association Agreement. The Foundation will do everything in its power to make the European choice of Ukraine’s civil society irreversible. This is only one of the directions of our activities but one that highlights our mission in other spheres - to promote an open and democratic society.

FREE AND FAIR ELECTION

The International Renaissance Foundation provided support to a number of civil society initiatives to ensure fair, transparent, and democratic parliamentary election 2012. We made a big effort to better inform the voters about the election process and get the public more involved in the monitoring of the election, government actions and pro-government media, and ensuring compliance with election laws. The IRF helped several civil society organizations to implement their monitoring, awareness, and advocacy initiatives.

The National Exit Poll, i.e. a poll of voters taken immediately after they have exited the polling stations, is a tool for public oversight of elections in Ukraine. In 2012, the project was managed by Ilko Kucheriv Democratic Initiatives Foundation. Kyiv International Institute of Sociology (KIIS) Razumkov Center) conducted the poll. A total of 19,837 respondents were interviewed at 400 polling stations. Exit poll results generally matched the official outcomes for party-list election provided by the Central Election Commission.

Maidan Monitoring NGO with IRF support launched a crowdsourced website for reporting violations of election laws during the election campaign (maidanua.org/vybory2012). Unlike other crowdsourced projects, Maidan

Monitoring used strictly verified information only, with documented evidence and legal commentary.

The Maidan Monitoring team processed over 7,000 complaints against violations of election laws. 467 volunteers contributed to the report. After verification by professional lawyers, more than 1,600 documented complaints were mapped. This allowed voters, journalists, and election observers to get a complete, nonpartisan picture of the election. Project presentations were held for long-term observers representing CANADEM, OSCE, ENEMO, and European Exchange as well as in the European Parliament.

“Only people themselves can prevent massive voter fraud. That is why I participate in this project”

Natalia Lyashenko, project volunteer (Kyiv).

The project’s lawyers reviewed each violation report and referred complaints, appeals and requests to the Prosecutor General’s office and other relevant government agencies.

GOVERNMENT ACCOUNTABILITY

In September 2011 Ukraine joined the Open Government Partnership (OGP), aiming to secure specific commitments from governments to promote transparency, empower citizens, curb corruption, and harness new technologies to strengthen governance.

IRF supported the Creative Union “TORO”, the contact group of Transparency International in Ukraine, which drafted the Country Action Plan, lobbied it with the state power institutions and presented the draft at the international level (<http://www.toro.org.ua/ogp>). As a result, on April 5, 2012 the Cabinet of Minister approved the Country Action Plan, which incorporated 80% of recommendations made by civil society experts.

Nowadays the government is implementing the Country Action Plan in 30 different areas. Some Plan-related commitments have already been met. In particular, Ukraine adopted the Laws “On Charity and Charity Organizations” and “On Administrative Services,” endorsed several regional programs on combating corruption and introduced electronic (online) public procurement procedures.

IRF supports civic monitoring of the National Action Plan implementation to force the government to fulfill its provisions in full and timely manner.

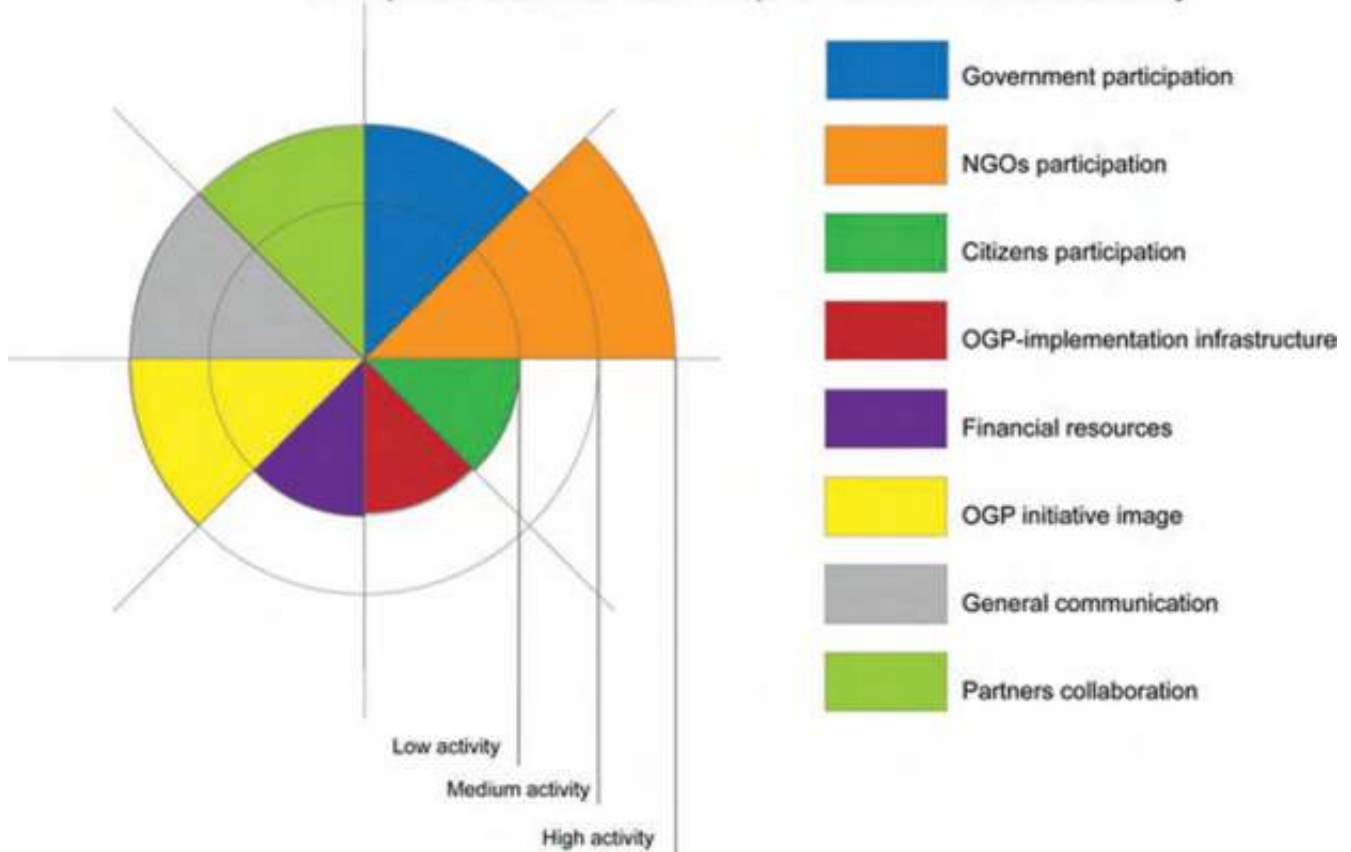

Ukraine’s commitment to join the Extracting Industries Transparency Initiative (EITI) was an important aspect of the National Action Plan within the Open Government Partnership initiative. The IRF supported the coalition of civil society institutions, united into the Energy Transparency Association (<http://ua-energy.org/eiti>) to support Ukraine’s accession to EITI.

In October 2012, as a result of the successful civic advocacy campaign, the Energy and Coal Industry Ministry formed the Multi-Party Group that has an equal number of government, business, and civil society representatives. The Group formation was one of the key prerequisites for Ukraine to obtain the status of an EITI candidate country. It is anticipated that Ukraine will become a full member by mid-2013. Ukraine was the first country to announce its intention to ensure the transparency of natural gas extraction and transportation.

ANTI-CORRUPTION CAMPAIGNS

In 2012, the IRF continued supporting civic initiatives in the area of public procurement monitoring. The coalition of non-governmental organizations, led by the Center for Political Studies and Analysis, monitored procurements of goods and services organized by the local state agencies in the areas of family, youth, and sports. The coalition also monitored small procurements (up to UAH 100,000 ($ 12,500)) that could be convened without public tenders. In total, the coalition monitored state procurements by 98 government agencies for UAH 550 mln ($ 70 mln) total. Experts concluded that systemic violations had been in place throughout Ukraine.

The biggest problems of state procurements are non-transparency of information on state procurements, clients' non-readiness to electronic bids, and 'fake' tenders."

The public monitoring campaign revealed a rather symptomatic situation in Kherson. In 2012, one of the local law firms, linked to a deputy of the Kherson municipal council, was paid UAH 295,000 ($ 37,000) for legal services it had allegedly provided to 4 units of the Kherson municipal council's executive committee. Other deputies of the Kherson municipal council had chaired these structural units. The authorities were forced to set up a special ad-hoc investigative commission to scrutinize this situation. The case was also examined by the prosecutor's office.

Serious violations of the anti-corruption legislation have been identified during the anti-corruption monitoring carried out by the All-Ukrainian Youth NGO "Student Brotherhood." The NGO concluded that large shares of the oblast budget funds, allocated towards the implementation of the Lviv regional program for Ukrainian language promotion, had been used by private companies associated with leadership of the related commission of the Lviv oblast council. Based on inspection results, several state officials were dismissed, including two deputy heads of the Lviv oblast state administration.

REGULATORY FRAMEWORK FOR CIVIL SOCIETY ORGANIZATIONS

With the support of IRF experts, the State Policy for Civil Society Development had been developed and later signed by the President of Ukraine in early 2012. The document listed specific measures the state should provide to promote civil society development. Civil society leaders assisted in implementation of some of its measures in 2012. For example, the laws “On Civil Society Organizations” and “On Charity and Charity Organizations” were adopted. Regional programs for civil society development, drafted in partnership with the IRF-funded Ukrainian Independent Center of Political Studies, were approved in 20 regions of Ukraine.

We also supported civic monitoring of the government’s observance and adequate application of the national legislation regulating the right to freedom of peaceful assembly.

Upon request submitted by the Information center “Maidan-Monitoring”, the Supreme Administrative Court of Ukraine issued a reference document “The Generalized Analysis of Administrative Courts’ ruling with regard to 2010-2011 legal cases related to the right to freedom of peaceful assembly”, which contained several progressive measures. For example, the odious July 28, 1988 Decree of the Supreme Soviet of the USSR “Procedures for Organizing Street Rallies, Protests, and Demonstrations in the USSR” was rendered void in Ukraine.

Public prosecution agencies protested against decisions taken by the Zaporizhzhya, Lutsk and Rivne local self-government agencies on the prohibition of peaceful assemblies. In Kherson, the court ruled that such a decision was illegitimate. Civic leaders managed to prevent the adoption of a similar decision in Ternopil and make the Novodruzhesk municipal council (Luhansk oblast) annul its own analogous normative act.

CONVENIENT ADMINISTRATIVE SERVICES

The IRF assists in transforming the bureaucratic apparatus of state power agencies into citizen-oriented service institutions. For the last two years we have been supporting the establishment of Administrative Service Centers (ASC) at the local level. These centers provide convenient and readily available administrative services to citizens, simplify bureaucratic procedures and reduce the risk of corruption. The law “On Administrative Services,” adopted in November 2012, requires that ASCs be established in cities of oblast subordination and all rayons by January 1, 2014.

The IRF supports civil society organizations that establish ASCs jointly with local self-governance agencies in Lutsk, Ivano-Frankivsk, Ternopil, Chernivtsi, Khmelnytsky, Bertyansk (Zaporizhzhya oblast), Izmail (Odesa oblast), Kremenchug (Poltava oblast), Novograd-Volynsky and Olevsk (Zhytomyr oblast), Gorodnya (Chernigiv oblast), and Trostyanets (Sumy oblast) – see ASC map.

Online “Open Government” office of administrative services was opened in Dnipropetrovsk in 2012 (<http://e-services.dp.gov.ua>). The online office in Dnipropetrovsk unites 35 licensing centers and related state power agencies. It serves as a single information platform and communication mechanism between businesses and state licensing agencies. The office provides information on all services, which are offered by 35 licensing centers of Dnipropetrovsk oblast. Businesses can monitor their applications' status online and receive consultations on licensing procedures online. Since the date of its inception, the office provided feedback to 19,000 public inquiries.

The cooperation between non-governmental organizations and local authorities allowed the creation of the Civic-Municipal E-Governance Center in Vinnitsa and the formation of a related expert group. The "E-Governance Laboratory" website (e-gov.in.ua) was launched in June 2012. The Center grew into a partnership platform that unites various regional organizations interested in further developing e-governance in Ukraine. More than 200 individuals – representatives of local self-governance agencies, nonprofit organizations, and journalists – underwent training programs at the Center.

CITIZEN SELF-ORGANIZATION

The IRF continues its activities in support of citizen self-organization at the local level, upgrading professional level and creating favorable conditions for the work of community self-organization agencies (OSNs in Ukrainian).

In 2012, we funded 8 OSN resource centers in Kyiv and other regions. The OSN resource centers have been united into a single network, co-ordinated by the All-Ukrainian Association of Community Self-Organization Agencies. The centers organize trainings and consultations on setting up, management and funding of OSNs. They also carry out advocacy campaigns to increase budget allocations in support of OSNs development.

The Gorlivka municipal council, for example, approved the 2013-2015 Program in support of community self-organization agencies in the town of Gorlivka and allocated twice as much budget funds in support of OSNs.

The IRF has also provided micro grants in support of advocacy campaigns to protect the interests of territorial community residents, vis-à-vis public authorities, and service providers. These micro grants facilitated civil society's involvement in regulatory activities and supported the monitoring of public authorities in their diligent and timely performance of duties.

The advocacy campaign organized by the OSBB Association “Luchany” (OSBB – apartment-building co-owners association) resulted in the Volyn oblast council's approval of the 2013-1015 Program of OSBB Development with a total budget of 51 mln Hrv. The Program envisions upgrading housing technical conditions, introducing energy saving technologies, improving residents' living standards and using housing maintenance funds more effectively.

RULE OF LAW

Unpaid Legal Aid

Criminal Justice Reform. National Preventive Mechanism

Combating Discrimination

Legal Empowerment of the Poor

Supporting civic initiatives to protect human rights and basic freedoms

UNPAID LEGAL AID

The launch of the state unpaid legal aid system in January 2013 was the result of many years of efforts by NGOs we supported. International Renaissance Foundation and the Open Society Justice Initiative began assisting the Ministry of Justice in setting up a national legal aid system since 2005.

For six years the International Renaissance Foundation's Rule of Law Program supported pilot Public Defender's Offices. Two studies were conducted on the quality and volume of aid in criminal cases and the legal needs of the population. Study visits were organized to countries with effective legal aid systems – the Netherlands, Great Britain, Canada and Israel.

The Public Defender's Offices became prototypes for the State Legal Aid Centers established in 2012. There are currently 27 Centers located in all oblast centers, Kyiv and Sevastopol. They provide citizens with access to a lawyer within an hour of being detained. The register of legal aid lawyers numbers 2,545 competitively selected professionals.

Under the new law, a police officer must inform the legal aid center about every arrest. The center assigns a lawyer that meets with the detainee within an hour. This procedure is part of the new Criminal Procedure Code.

CRIMINAL JUSTICE REFORM. NATIONAL PREVENTIVE MECHANISM

In 2012, the National Preventive Mechanism (NPM) was launched in Ukraine to allow the Ombudsman and NGO representatives to visit prisons, pretrial detention centers, psychiatric hospitals, boarding schools, and other detention facilities. About 5,500 custodial settings there are currently in Ukraine (Kharkiv Institute of Social Research data).

In the last two years, monitoring procedures were designed, the list of detention facilities was compiled, and monitoring toolkit and reporting templates were developed in partnership with the IRF Rule of Law program. Combined, they form a basis of the National Preventive Mechanism.

On November 4, 2012, a new law entered into force that authorized the Parliamentary Commissioner for Human Rights to visit detention facilities without prior notice, interview the persons in custody, and request information about detention conditions and treatment in such facilities from government agencies. Most importantly, however, the law allows members of the public to have access to confinement facilities as well. Kharkiv Institute of Social Research has, with IRF support, developed a monitoring toolkit to be used during such visits.

The Ombudsman's staff made over 150 visits to various confinement facilities in 2012, often with NGO participation.

RULE OF LAW

The Ombudsman's office has established an expert panel for NPM development comprising NGO representatives. The panel is expected to become a platform for effective communication between the Ombudsman and the public on issues related to the monitoring of detention facilities.

COMBATING DISCRIMINATION

The efforts of anti-discrimination NGOs have received a major boost from the Anti-Discrimination Coalition (ADC, www.antidi.org.ua) established in Ukraine in partnership with the program. Currently, the Coalition comprises more than forty NGOs and experts advocating the rights of various social groups such as disabled people, LGBT communities, ethnic minorities, or people discriminated against on the basis of their age, gender, race, etc.

The ongoing raising awareness and advocacy efforts by the ADC have contributed to the official recognition of discrimination in Ukraine and confirmed the need to establish an adequate legal framework to address it.

In September 2012, the Ukrainian Parliament adopted the framework law On the Main Principles of Preventing and Combating Discrimination in Ukraine. It is the first Ukrainian law that provides a legal definition of discrimination and lists the forms and types of discrimination. However, human rights activists emphasize the need to improve the law to make it effective, therefore the ADC intends to promote amendments to this and other relevant laws.

Ensuring effective judicial protection against discrimination is one of the Coalition's main priorities. On December 11, 2012, Dnipropetrovsk Court of Appeals delivered an unprecedented ruling in the lawsuit filed by Dmytro Zharyi, disabled man in a wheelchair, against pharmacies that did not have wheelchair ramps installed. The court ordered the State Drug Administration to consider revocation of the pharmacies' licenses.

Dmytro had previously taken an ADC training course on judicial protection strategies against discrimination and decided to file a lawsuit to force public establishments to install functional wheelchair ramps for people with disabilities.

"This is not just my personal issue. This issue concerns every disabled person in Ukraine, and it's not only limited to pharmacies. I wanted to set a precedent for other disabled people to be able to defend their rights in court and change the situation in general"

said Dmytro Zharyi.

Following this court ruling, the Prime Minister of Ukraine instructed relevant ministries to develop amendments to the terms of licensing that would oblige pharmacies and healthcare institutions to ensure that people with disabilities had convenient physical access to their premises. This case illustrates how a single court ruling can improve the situation concerning the rights of a discriminated group.

LEGAL EMPOWERMENT OF THE POOR

In 2012, the IRF lent its support to 36 communal legal information and advice centers. Since the Legal Empowerment of the Poor initiative was launched in 2009, the total of 41 such centers have been established in twenty regions of Ukraine. Approximately 70,000 people have received legal aid from information and advice centers since 2009.

The centers receive requests on a fairly wide range of legal issues, with the majority focusing on social security and retirement benefits. Other issues of concern included labor and consumer rights, countering domestic violence, and land ownership issues such as land share lease agreements between land owners and tenants in rural areas.

"In town of Snizhne where I live, paid lawyers and still cannot provide any meaningful assistance. The legal aid services that you provide instill confidence in people and give them a sense of protection" said Valentyna Pikalova, retiree who had received legal aid claiming her deceased husband's retirement account balance.

For the most part, the centers provide initial legal advice and mediation services in out-of-court dispute settlement. A total of seventeen mediators were trained in 2012. By way of exception, the centers may ask lawyers to defend cases in court on a pro bono basis.

Some centers that have been previously supported by the IRF will from now on be funded by local governments. The legal information and advice center in Skadovsk, Kherson Oblast, was established two years ago. In late 2012, the city council decided to reorganize it into a municipal institution for basic legal aid to be funded by the city.

Throughout 2012, the IRF focused much of its efforts on providing legal aid to Roma communities. Legal information and advice centers were established in Cherkasy, Uzhgorod, and Mukacheve, with some units of those centers operating at the heart of Roma camps. According to Roma lawyers working at the centers, the legal issues most common among Roma people are obtaining identification documents and applying for social security benefits. The lawyers facilitate communication between Roma people and government issues on the issues such as registration, social security applications, improving facilities in camps, etc.

All contact information for legal information centers can be found on the Legal Space website (pravo.prostir.ua) that also offers online legal advice.

EUROPEAN PROGRAM

CIVIC PLATFORM FOR INTEGRATION WITH THE EU

The Foundation's European Program has been active since 2004 promoting Ukraine's European integration and participation of the civil society in it. We see the European integration as an effective tool to implement European standards of democracy, good governance, transparency, accountability, fair competition, non-discrimination, protection of consumer's rights and basic social and human rights in Ukraine.

Even though the EU-Ukraine association agreement has not yet been signed, the civil society can demand that the EU standards be implemented as required by public interests and the existing EU-Ukraine Association Agenda. In 2012, we provided support to ten advocacy projects promoting implementation of the EU standards, namely: government subsidies for businesses, protection of the rights of borrowers, social service systems, unhindered access to facilities for people with disabilities, employment opportunities for people with disabilities, road safety for pedestrians, utility sector energy efficiency, environmental impact assessment, air quality, and electronic waste recycling.

In 2012, the IRF has provided support to Ukrainian National Platform for the Eastern Partnership Civil Society Forum (<http://eu.prostir.ua/themes/EaP.html>) was launched in partnership with the IRF. Five Platform working groups were set up, modeled after the Eastern Partnership's topical issues of concern. At the Eastern Partnership Civil Society Forum meeting in Stockholm in the fall of 2012, Ukrainian representatives were appointed coordinators of three of the Forum's five international working groups.

The National Platform is open for all Ukrainian organizations working in the fields specified by the Eastern Partnership. Participation in the Platform gives organizations with different thematic focus an opportunity to participate in activities held at the national and international levels, coordinate the interests of different groups such as the energy experts and environmentalists, establish common priority objectives of the civil society, and consolidate the efforts to accomplish them.

EUROPEAN INTEGRATION INDEX FOR EASTERN PARTNERSHIP COUNTRIES

The IRF in partnership with the Open Society Foundations (OSF) launched the first comprehensive annual monitoring of the EU integration processes in the region, i.e. European Integration Index for Eastern Partnership countries (<http://www.eap-index.eu/>). The index is now a reliable tool that is now taken into account by the EU institutions when developing differentiated policies toward Eastern Partnership countries.

No progress is possible without a focused civil society policy that would involve pressuring the government into launching ambitious reforms and monitoring the reform process.

Štefan Füle, European Commissioner for Enlargement and European Neighborhood Policy.

High-level government officials, including cabinet members from Poland, Moldova, Georgia, and Armenia commented the Index results. The Index is also referred to in the EU reports on the progress of the European Neighborhood Policy. It has been widely publicized in Ukrainian and international media.

The index is calculated by fifty experts representing all Eastern Partnership countries, i.e. Ukraine, Moldova, Belarus, Georgia, Armenia, and Azerbaijan, as well as some EU member states in partnership with the European Program and the East-East: Partnership beyond Borders program.

EUROPE WITHOUT BARRIERS

In an effort to facilitate the EU-Ukraine visa liberalization process, the IRF provides its support to the civil society initiative Europe without Barriers (www.novisa.com.ua). The advocacy efforts resulted in the amendments to the EU-Ukraine Visa Facilitation Agreement expanding the list of valid reasons for requesting multiple-entry visas as well as categories of citizens eligible for EU visas under a simplified procedure.

The Europe without Barriers initiative in partnership with the Visa-Free Europe (visa-free-europe.eu) international coalition has carried out a series of activities in the capitals of the EU member states to dispel the stereotype that Ukrainian immigration is a threat. The activities targeted experts, politicians, government officials, public activists, and journalists of those countries.

The IRF has also provided support to initiatives focusing on Ukraine's EU integration on people-to-people level such as the Friendly Ukraine initiative and launched volunteer projects such as I CAN HELP YOU, Rooms4free, and We Have Guests. As part of the project, Ukrainian volunteers provided free accommodation, sightseeing and other services to visitors during the UEFA Euro 2012 Football Championship that was co-hosted by Ukraine.

MASS MEDIA

Open News for Fair Elections

Free and Professional Journalism

Investigative Journalism

Promoting the standards of independent and professional journalism in Ukraine

OPEN NEWS FOR FAIR ELECTIONS

One of the IRF's most ambitious projects for 2012 was the Open News for Fair Elections initiative. It was launched in September, one month before the election day. The aim was to ensure equal access of candidates to mass media.

Seven leading national TV channels had signed the initiative's memorandum.

Expert monitoring of mass media was conducted by the Academy of Ukrainian Press, the Institute of Mass Information, Telekrytyka NGO, and the Equal Opportunities Committee / Common Space Association.

The project efforts contributed to improved quality of election news content provided by Inter and ICTV channels throughout October as well as some improvement in the quality of news coverage by other TV channels. Arguably, the initiative was instrumental in ensuring that the leading political actors were proportionally represented in TV coverage based on their favorability ratings. The range of topics highlighted by TV channels during the election campaign was also expanded significantly. The project proved to be the first success story of effective cooperation between monitoring NGOs and private TV companies in Ukraine.

During the election campaign, public experts not only monitored television content but also created their own. With support from the IRF, the TVi channel produced a series of shows entitled 'Election-2012. On the Other Hand' to discuss political parties' vision of the key issues such as education reform, healthcare services, national security, economic situation, and human rights. The shows centered on nonpartisan experts asking political party representatives those topical questions.

FREE AND PROFESSIONAL JOURNALISM

The Foundation sponsored several events during the 64th World Newspaper Congress held in Kyiv on September 2-5, 2012. Independent journalists and the professional public conveyed their position on the infringement on freedom of speech in Ukraine to approximately one thousand leading international publishers and editors. Ukrainian journalists and editors developed their professional skills. The event has also drew the world's attention to the threats to freedom of speech in Ukraine.

The IRF takes significant efforts to overcome drawbacks of post-Soviet higher education for journalists. For the past four years, we have supported the New Ukraine School of Professional Journalism.

Leading experts and journalists from Ukraine and abroad are invited to teach at the school. In general, two thirds of the training is taken by conceptual lectures and courses of general humanitarian nature while one third is composed of professional specialized classes. The main outcome of the project is formation of the community, a network of socially responsible journalists who effectively apply their acquired knowledge and comply with ethical standards of the profession. (More information can be found at novaukraina.org).

We continued to support the advocacy campaign to introduce a media literacy course into the secondary school curriculum. As a result, the Ministry of Education of Ukraine has recommended to introduce media literacy courses in secondary schools nationwide starting from 2013.

INVESTIGATIVE JOURNALISM

The Foundation is playing an active role in advancing investigative journalism in Ukraine. The Mass Media Program remains a partner of the Nashi Groshi (Our Money) project (www.nashigroshi.org), which it helped launch. Today Nashi Groshi is the most successful and influential investigative journalism project in the field of public procurement. Project materials are often referenced in high-profile publications and have led to further investigations into the inefficient and non-transparent spending of public funds.

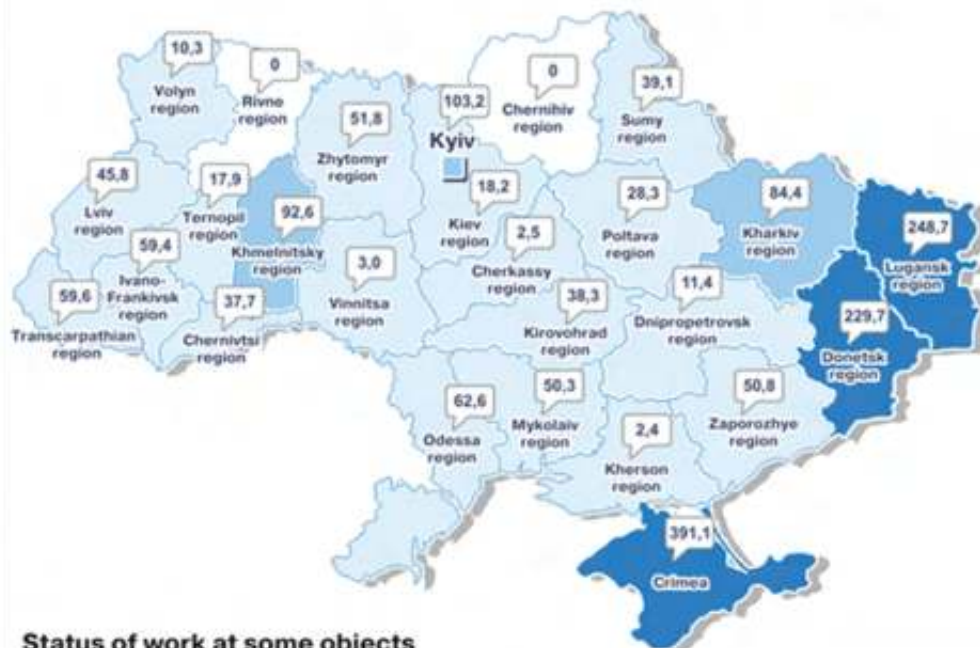

Slidstvo.Info project combined reporting and investigative journalism. The materials produced have gained wide public attention, particularly the investigation into the misuse of public funds earmarked for energy saving in schools and hospitals.

“Journalists in many regions of Ukraine took up the issue. As a result of the investigation, the Verkhovna Rada of Ukraine set up an ad hoc investigative committee”, said Dmytro Hnap, Project Manager, slidstvo.info

HARM REDUCTION

The IRF Public Health program supports communities of people affected by the problem of drugs and HIV/AIDs. We support advocacy campaigns and other initiatives aimed at vulnerable groups – drug users, people with HIV/AIDs, sex workers, patients and doctors participating in opiate substitution treatment (OST) programs. We also promote the introduction of progressive policies and practices that improve access of vulnerable groups to prophylactics and healthcare programs.

Law-enforcement agencies often illegally use the detainee's intolerable physical and psychologic condition in the process of interrogation and investigation. There are more than 7000 OST patients in Ukraine, and one out of five people has experienced being detained.

The OST patients should have continuous access to treatment in pre-trial detention centers and/or prisons, because their withdrawal from the program results in abstinence. Human rights activists qualify it as cruel, degrading treatment or torture.

In response to years of advocacy pressure mounted by the Program and its partners, the inter-ministerial decree was adopted in 2012. It provides that detained individuals staying under provisional arrest at institutions of the Ministry of the Interior (temporary police cells) or the State Penitentiary Service (pre-trial detention centers) should receive continuous treatment and access to OST medication. As a result of this action, patients will have access to essential medicines.

PALLIATIVE CARE

The Foundation promotes the development of palliative care in Ukraine. Palliative care (PC) provides terminally ill patients with an opportunity to obtain proper treatment and live with human dignity until the end of their lives. Our goal is to integrate palliative care in the healthcare system of Ukraine and to implement effective and cost-efficient models of PC delivery.

The Ukrainian Association of Palliative Care estimates that 500,000 patients require palliative assistance in Ukraine, but the number of hospices and palliative care departments at oncology hospitals is inadequate and does not meet international standards. To date, the country's 7 hospices and 54 palliative departments have a total of 1,041 beds, whereas Ukraine requires 3,500 beds at minimum. The healthcare system is severely underfunded and thus the amount of equipment and medical personnel is insufficient.

The First National Congress of Palliative Care was held in September 2012 in Kyiv. It was attended by more than 350 participants from Ukraine, USA, Poland, Austria, Egypt and other countries, who discussed the Strategy for Palliative Care Development in Ukraine. The Strategy was jointly developed by public health system professionals, volunteers, human rights activists, representatives of patients organizations, and clergymen. The document was forwarded to the Health Ministry for analysis and approval.

Around 500,000 Ukrainians need palliative care and relief of pain symptoms caused by incurable diseases (data has been provided by Human Rights Watch)

For the past three years we had been supporting the Palliative Care Training Center at the Ivano-Frankivsk hospice. This training facility has grown into a real resource center for palliative care professionals. Doctors, nurses, social workers, volunteers, relatives and psychologists from all over Ukraine can get free study courses there.

In September 2012, the mobile palliative care team “Hospice at Home” started operating at the Ivano-Frankivsk hospice. It provides assistance to patients who either cannot or do not want to stay at stationary hospice departments. Patients receive complex palliative care from best doctors and nurses, who provide them with painkillers and all necessary treatments. The mobile palliative care team was also established in Zakarpattya oblast (town of Vinogradiv).

On October 28 2012, fifteen oblasts of Ukraine joined in the National Palliative Care Week program organized in honor of the World Hospice and Palliative Care Day. Local residents learned about problems faced by terminally ill patients and raised funds from charity donations to support hospices and organizations assisting incurable patients.

“Assistance from people, whom we do not know. Assistance for no reason! At a time when you’ve become accustomed to indifference, lines, and hard-faced treatment. And here – smiles and attention! It means that even when your relatives are in trouble and suffer from severe illnesses, you CAN still smile and feel joy! And you are not facing this problem alone. It means that there are places, they will listen to you and share your anxiety, not just say ‘do as prescribed.’”

STOP PAIN

StopBil (Stop Pain) civic campaign (www.stopbil.in.ua) was launched in December 2011 on the initiative of the IRF and Open Society Foundation Network Program (New York) to draw attention to the problem of access to pain treatment in Ukraine. Ukraine remains the only country in Europe where only injectable morphine is used for pain relief. Patients have to endure pain caused by the disease and that of injections. International organizations consider this maltreatment and torture.

The Ukrainian media broke the taboo and started to report on the problem of unavailability of opioid painkillers to Ukrainian patients. The open letter was handed over to the Presidential Administration. “It is only with the assistance of daily pain relief that I can live, work and be a full-fledged member of society!” – reads one of the comments in the letter, which was signed by more than 800 people.

To ensure the availability of painkillers, citizens of Ukraine requested the President to expedite the adoption of the Cabinet of Ministers' resolution “The Procedure for Circulation of Narcotic Substances, Psychotropic Substances and their Precursors Within the Healthcare System of Ukraine”, and take the process of registration and local production of oral morphine under his personal control.

Under the public pressure, the Health Ministry has registered the oral (tablet) morphine along with other essential medications. This will help thousands of Ukrainians to receive the much-awaited pain relief.

“When I learned about this initiative, I started talking about it with my relatives and friends... As it turned out, many people have faced this problem before – either their relatives or neighbors have died from cancer. And they have been dying with excruciating pain and suffering. It appears to be such a simple thing [to offer access to pain relief], but it has been neglected for so long.”

ACCESS TO ESSENTIAL MEDICINES

The Health Ministry of Ukraine allocates virtually zero funds for viral hepatitis C diagnostics and treatment. The state statistics are thus inaccurate. With the IRF's support, more than 50 non-governmental organizations, led by the International HIV/AIDs Alliance in Ukraine, carried out a free rapid testing on the streets of large cities and towns of Ukraine. More than 10% of the tested persons showed positive results on the presence of viral hepatitis C. During the campaign all interested persons could obtain practical recommendations on prophylactics of hepatitis, its diagnostics and treatment.

More than 6,000 people signed the petition calling for the Prime Minister and the President of Ukraine to recognize the growing epidemic of viral hepatitis C in Ukraine.

They demanded to approve the National program for the prevention of viral hepatitis; to develop and adopt the viral hepatitis treatment protocol in compliance with international standards; and to ensure the procurement of high quality and safe medicines by the state.

Roma of Ukraine

Healthcare and Social Mediators

Legal Aid

Roma Youth

Promoting Roma integration in Ukraine's society while preserving ethnocultural uniqueness of the Romani

EDUCATION

The lack of access to education remains a major obstacle for Roma integration in Ukraine. In 2012-2013, the Roma Education Foundation (Budapest) provided 80 students with an opportunity to study for a degree in humanities at Ukrainian higher education institutions. Ten grants were given for foreign language learning and two more grants were provided for international internships at Roma NGOs in Moldova.

The Roma of Ukraine program also offers its support to parents in preparing their children for school. As part of the Preschool Education objective within the Preparing Roma Children for School contest, the program continues to cooperate with the Open Society Early Childhood Program (London) and the Ukrainian Step by Step foundation in supervising the work of six early childhood development centers. The work at the centers is organized in two areas, namely 'Responsible Parenthood' and 'Preparing for School'. The IRF has also lent its support to Roma vocational education projects within the framework of the contest entitled 'Vocational Education of Roma for Improved Employment Opportunities'.

A certified Roma Studies program has been launched in partnership with the IRF at the Oriental Studies Center of the National University of Kyiv Mohyla Academy. A series of comprehensive proprietary training courses, workshops and seminars have been developed on the history and culture of Roma people.

"Attending lectures and seminars as part of the 'Roma Studies'. It is a great opportunity to get to know more about the history, culture, and lifestyles of people living around me about whom I knew very little before"

says Olga Gergel, student of Kyiv National Linguistic University.

HEALTHCARE AND SOCIAL MEDIATORS

The Roma of Ukraine need better access to healthcare services. The IRF in partnership with the Foundation for Development of Ukraine have lent their support to an initiative launched by Cirikli Roma Women's Foundation to improve access to healthcare services through the network of Roma healthcare mediators. Since 2012, the number of medical mediators has increased from 15 to 50, and their geographical coverage has expanded to include seven more regions of Ukraine. Currently, the network covers twelve regions of Ukraine.

“Roma mediators are expected to raise awareness about the healthcare system, women's health, and the importance of disease prevention and vaccination among the Roma communities to help build mutual trust and establish cooperation between local government agencies and Roma communities” said Zemfira Kondur, Vice President of the International Charitable Organization Cirikli Roma Women's Foundation.

The mediation training program has been adapted and approved by the Sanitary Center of the Ministry of Health of Ukraine. The Ukrainian Tuberculosis Control Center of the Ministry of Health of Ukraine will be taking part in the project and has already appointed twelve supervisors to cooperate with local mediators in pilot regions.

LEGAL AID

The IRF helps to create opportunities for changes in the legal awareness of the Roma by providing practical legal advice and encouraging Romani people to use available legal options. In 2012 we supported 10 projects to legally empower Roma living in 7 regions with the largest Roma populations.

As part of these projects legal advice was provided, the interests of members of the Roma community were represented in dealing with government agencies and the courts to obtain identification documents. Lawyers helped with registration procedures, obtaining social welfare benefits and registering property. Analysis was done of human rights violations (restrictions on access to medical and educational services, employment opportunities, social welfare benefits, etc) and violations of the right to documents were monitored and documented.

Activities were carried out to raise awareness of human rights and cooperation with the government to address a number of human rights issues affecting the Roma in Ukraine.

Following meetings between representatives of the Human Rights Ombudsman, Ministry of Internal Affairs and Roma Alliance of Cherkasy, letters were sent to local police departments calling attention to the unacceptability of prejudice based on a person's nationality. Similar activities are planned for other oblasts.

ROMA YOUTH

The Roma of Ukraine Program provided funding for 10 competitively selected cultural and educational mini-projects by Roma youth - summer camps, dancing, singing and Romani language lessons, thematic meetings for youth, projects to demonstrate the diversity of the Roma people and other projects to promote the development and sustainability of Roma communities, promote tolerance, empower Roma youth to overcome life's obstacles and encourage them to become active members of society.

We also supported musical groups, the creation of jobs for Roma youth and preparing children for school. A training was held on combating discrimination and promoting tolerance and involving Roma in the youth movement in Ukraine. It was attended by young leaders of Roma NGOs and recipients of scholarships from the Roma Education Fund. Representatives of leading national youth organizations served as trainers.

On June 24, 2012, Bilhorod-Dnistrovsky hosted the Roma Diversity Festival that was attended by more than 2,000 city residents and visitors.

"We saw that people are interested in the culture, history and traditions of our people. We planted the seed of friendship, love and harmony in people of different nationalities living in our city"

EDUCATION PROGRAM

Public influence on education policy

Inclusive education

Fostering systemic changes in Ukraine's education to adopt the best European practices

PUBLIC INFLUENCE ON EDUCATION POLICY

Over the course of 2012, civil society organizations had closely followed the statutory and regulatory initiatives of the Ministry of Education. Owing to the support provided to the Education Monitoring Center and other NGOs, a wide public debate over the draft laws on higher education. The government failed to push their version the bill, considered by many as highly controversial.

Monitoring report has been released on country's entering the European Higher Education and Research Area. The report results show that Ukrainian education system is far from being consistent of Bologna process standards, with persistent problems of low universities autonomy and students mobility. The report was widely publicized that led to objective assessment of Ukraine's advancement in Bologna process at the Bucharest Ministerial Conference and third Bologna Policy Forum.

The IRF has also helped to develop decentralized and accountable model of policy education. Teachers representing 10 regional post-graduate pedagogic schools took a pilot course on school budget management developed with IRF support. Now the course is expected to be included to the curriculum of state-funded training for school directors.

INCLUSIVE EDUCATION

The Foundation supports the implementation in Ukraine of inclusive education enabling children with special needs to attend general education schools and exercise their right to education. In the absence of systemic government support, inclusive education in Ukraine is implemented at the grass roots level, and the number of general education schools accepting children with special needs is increasing with every year.

With the assistance from the Educational program for Ukrainian schools and kindergartens, a monitoring instrument called Inclusion Index was introduced to improve the quality of services provided by educational institutions for children with special needs.

For parents with children with hearing loss, a textbook was developed to assist in improving communication with a child, preschool preparation, and successful social adaptation. For preschool age children, hand alphabets and sign language posters were distributed to help them learn the sign language.

We assisted in creation of specialized Web portal Inclusive education, which we expect to serve as an effective communication tool for all interested parties as well as a source of relevant information for experts, government officials and media.

EAST-EAST PARTNERSHIP BEYOND BORDERS

International Partnership

Best Practice Exchange in Ukraine

Building long-term strategic partnership between civil society organizations of different countries to share ideas and best practices

INTERNATIONAL PARTNERSHIP

In 2012, the East-East Partnership beyond Borders program focused its efforts on promoting best practices of public participation in addressing current social, economic, and political problems facing the society. In an effort to promote exchange of best practices in public activities, the program helped develop civil society expertise in Ukraine and strengthen coordination between non-governmental institutions at the national and international levels.

The program encourages international exchange of best practices in public monitoring, analysis and expert assessment, advocacy and lobbying, and civil society participation to promote reforms and successfully address the problems facing the society in different fields.

In 2012, the program also provided 55 Ukrainian civil society activists and experts with an opportunity to take part in some activities carried out by partner organizations abroad.

The experts from twelve Central and Eastern European countries analyzed the current situation in the European Union as well as its political and economic development and transformation prospects. They also offered practical recommendations on how to improve the EU-Ukraine action plan and cooperation between Ukraine and the EU and East Partnership countries.

Scouts from Slovakia, Romania, the Czech Republic, Slovenia, and Hungary shared their innovative experiences of promoting participation of Roma youth in scouting organizations. Their joint efforts helped break common stereotypes as well as social and communication barriers between the participants. Ukrainian scouts got to discover Roma culture and traditions.

"I was pleasantly impressed by the experience of our foreign colleagues. However, the progress made in the implementation of the project in Ukraine offers hope that wider participation of Roma in scouting activities as well as other organized activities for Roma youth will boost their social integration in Ukraine."
Andriy Knyzhnyi (Congress of National Communities of Ukraine)

Iryna Sarancha, civic activist from Vinnytsya, was named Person of the Year by the managers of a Kazakh project for gender equality for women with disabilities. Iryna shared her experiences of working at Parostok NGO and told about the employment rights situation for women with disabilities in Ukraine. She was later invited to join the ranks of the International Expert Network of Leaders and Organizations for People with Special Needs of Central Asia and the CIS.

BEST PRACTICE EXCHANGE IN UKRAINE

In 2012, the IRF continued its efforts to promote the international model of best practice exchange among NGOs in different regions of Ukraine. A total of eleven projects were implemented focusing on legal awareness and human rights protection, promoting civic traditions in rural communities, addressing social and economic problems facing rural communities, self-governance in small communities, work of apartment building co-owners associations, promoting peace and mutual understanding within small communities, etc.

The best practice exchange competition for Ukrainian organizations gave more than 700 participants representing villages and townships from across Ukraine an opportunity to share their experiences. It also helped civil society activists from rural communities to get practical information about community cooperation and legal principles of addressing social problems as well as make useful contacts with established partner organizations willing to provide their support in the future.

EAST-EAST
PARTNERSHIP
BEYOND BORDERS

Through exchange of best practices, a number of proposals were developed to help communities address the problems facing villages and townships. The issues included water pollution in villages, promotion and protection of the rights of land share holders and use of leased land shares, road repair and inadequate transport situation in rural areas, poor street lighting in rural areas, lack of children's playgrounds, etc.

"We are looking forward to applying the best practices in rural development in Vinnytsya, starting with the communities where we are already working."

Anna Morhun (Podillya-Socium Center, Vinnytsya)

ANTI-CRISIS HUMANITARIAN PROGRAM

Education and Culture

Social Entrepreneurship and Social Services

Ecological Initiatives

Promoting new opportunities for people who suffered the most from the financial and economic crisis

EDUCATION AND CULTURE

In 2012 the Anti-Crisis Humanitarian Program supported several educational and cultural projects. Whereas in previous years the program had been mostly providing direct humanitarian aid, in 2012 it focused on sustainable initiatives.

To ensure greater transparency in the pre-school enrollment process, the Anti-Crisis Humanitarian Program established a partnership with the Kyiv Municipal Department of Education to develop an electronic (on-line) system of enrollment to Kyiv preschools and kindergartens (www.dnz.kiev.ua). In a situation of crisis-related shortage of places at kindergartens and preschools, the system assisted in eliminating corruption and improving the lives of young families with children.

In 2012 the Program supported the “Step by Step” Foundation, which organized a series of training sessions to introduce village preschool teachers to inclusive and child-centered educational methods. The “Step by Step” complex child development training program was attended by 156 teachers from 79 preschools. Each preschool was assigned an individual mentor/consultant. All training participants also received the necessary methodological materials, as well as developmental toys, games and books for children.

“In a situation when the preschool education system remains underfunded and faces substantial difficulties, this project facilitated the development of teachers’ practical skills and abilities in areas such as planning of educational process, communication with children, work with parents, and inclusive education.”

Natalya Dyatlenko, Step by Step project consultant

We supported 82 village libraries and helped them enrich their collections with new books and periodicals.

The Anti-Crisis Humanitarian Program organized a micro grants competition to help rural libraries enrich their collections with modern literature in humanities and social sciences and strengthen their capacity as centers of local cultural and social dialogue. The initiative also aimed to spark an interest in reading in children and youth. In total, the program received the record number of 780 project proposals.

The youth NGO “Intellectual Leadership” developed a project in partnership with the National Historical Library of Ukraine (NHLU) and the business company “Electronic Archives of Ukraine.” The project involved students and unemployed youth into the digitalization of NHLU’s collection of antique books and the formation of the library electronic catalogue. More than 1000 rare manuscripts – highly valuable from cultural and historical standpoints – have been saved from destruction. The project offered temporary employment to almost 200 students, who worked as database managers and computer index operators.

SOCIAL ENTREPRENEURSHIP AND SOCIAL SERVICES

In times of financial and economic crisis, social entrepreneurship (a real business with a clear set of declared social objectives that reapplies all profits into the business itself, civic initiatives or to supplement the social objectives defined by the business) can provide new opportunities for improving the sustainability of service NGOs and creating new jobs for vulnerable groups. For these reasons, the International Renaissance Foundation joined the consortium for the development of social entrepreneurship in Ukraine and funded several project-related initiatives.

In partnership with the East Europe Foundation, we supported two regional Social Enterprise Resource Centers in Lviv and Donetsk and one National Social Enterprise Resource Center in Kyiv (<http://www.socialbusiness.in.ua/>). The Centers already serve as major educational and consultation centers that develop and represent the sector of Ukraine's social entrepreneurship. They assist social entrepreneurs with legal issues, consult them on management, marketing, and development of social enterprise business plans.

IRF provided funding in support of 7 business-plans designed by nonprofit organizations. The supported projects offered specific mechanisms to ensure sustainability in social service provision to vulnerable groups. The IRF-funded business plans offered employment opportunities to the homeless, orphan children and people with special needs at green houses and souvenir production workshops. We also supported the opening of a swimming pool and swimming rehabilitation services for people with special needs.

"The project allowed us to broaden the assortment of our souvenir products and helped us penetrate the souvenir markets of Kyiv, Vinnitsa, and Ivano-Frankivsk oblasts. We managed to save our social enterprise and also created additional job opportunities for people with special needs"

ENVIRONMENTAL INITIATIVES

In times of financial and economic crisis the problem of energy saving and environmental protection becomes more acute. In partnership with the all-Ukrainian charity fund “Krona,” in 2012 the Anti-Crisis Humanitarian Program organized a micro grant competition “For life in a clean environment! Support ecological initiatives in local communities.”

We funded 24 projects designed by environmental NGOs and local self-governance agencies that aimed to support socially useful activities such as the organized cleaning of outdoor areas and removing trash, reviving forest areas and parks, providing potable water to Roma communities, collecting paper/carton and metal recyclables, the start-up of energy-saving projects, and promoting volunteer work among schoolchildren and youth.

Within the all-Ukrainian environmental campaign “Let’s Make Ukraine Clean!,” the Yaremche municipal NGO “Mama-86-Yaremche” and its partners – the Carpathian national natural park, Mykulychyn municipal council and charity fund “Carpathian Blagochyn” – cleaned the Meresne river stream (basin of Prut river) from household trash.

ANTI-CRISIS HUMANITARIAN PROGRAM

The environmental campaign “Eco-spring” was held in four villages (Dnirpovske, Muzykivtsi, Stanislav and Shyroka Balka) in the Bilozersk rayon in Kherson oblast. The campaign was initiated by the Bilozersk rayon NGO “Youth center for regional development”. Children and youth cleaned up local village territories; planted trees and bushes; set up benches, trash bins and street lights in local parks; repaired children playgrounds and school yards.

The non-profit organization “Dobrochyn Center,” together with the Gorodnyansk municipal council, implemented the “Clean Water – Better Life Quality” project that resolved environmental problem in the Alyoshynske village (Chernigiv oblast), where the local Roma community faced difficulties with potable water supplies. The local Roma residents obtained their drinking water from wells of low water horizons. The water from these wells was rich in nitrates, salt and heavy metals and did not meet basic environmental norms. As a result of the project, almost 50 Roma families were connected to a quality supply of water.
